

Icehouse developer ING to purchase Curling rocks

By The Victorian Curling Association - Friday, 15 January, 2010

As a late Christmas gift and a demonstration of their commitment to Australian Curling, Billy's mob at ING has offered to acquire a set of curling rocks for use at Melbourne's new winter sports facility The Icehouse.

With the final details yet to be announced, the excitement among Victorian Curling Association members is at its' peak.

The Icehouse set to open in a few weeks, and the Victorian Curling Association is looking forward to regular curling returning to Australia.

Just in time for the 2010 Winter Olympics the Icehouse is "the" venue for ice sports in Australia. Opportunities for Australians to try, train and compete in the Winter Olympic ice sports will now be available on a permanent basis at the Icehouse.

The Victorian Curling Association is embracing this opportunity to grow the sport of Curling in Victoria and Australia. Offering open "come and try" sessions as well as regular club sessions; Curling will now be available to many more Australians.
